Ex-agent due at KSU

John Stockwell, a former CIA agent, will deliver remarks Monday evening in the Catskeller of the K-State Union.

Stockwell will speak on "The Secret Wars of the CIA." His appearance here is sponsored by the Coalition for Human Rights, a campus-based organization.

A former Marine officer, Stockwell joined the CIA in 1964. He has been interviewed on CBS and NBC, and has been featured in two documentary films on the CIA. He left the CIA in 1977.

He will be introduced at the speech by Cornelia Flora, a member of the sociology faculty at K-State. Stockwell's remarks will be followed by a discussion, and the entire evening is open to the public.

The event is one of two being held this week by the Coalition. The other, at 7 p.m. Tuesday, is the showing of a film Gaza Ghetto on the life of a Palestinian family since their relocation in 1948. That film will be shown in the Catskeller. Its showing here is co-sponsored by the Association of Arab Students at KSU.
